Nut'ola

Nut'ola can be made in large batches, so it makes future breakfasts quick and easy. I suggest making it on the weekend, while you have time, and keeping it in an airtight glass container. Any nuts can be used – this is not an all-inclusive list. Feel free to add whatever nuts you like and take out something if you don't.

2 cups almonds, sliced
2 cups coconut flakes
1 cup almonds, chopped
1 cup macadamia nuts
½ cup flax seeds
½ cup chia seeds
½ cup sesame seeds
2 oranges, juiced and zested
¼ cup coconut oil
1 tablespoon vanilla
Salt to taste

Preheat oven to 300°F.

Heat the coconut oil, orange juice, zest, cinnamon, and vanilla in a large pot until the zest becomes fragrant. Add in all the nuts, seeds, and coconut flakes, stirring until coated. Salt lightly.

Line 2 sheet trays with parchment and spread the mixture over 2 trays. Cook until browned slightly, stirring every 10 minutes so it doesn't burn on the edges. Allow to cool completely before storing in an airtight container.
